Michigan State Plant Research Center

Atomic Energy Commission joins University's new Laboratory Project

By CHARLES R. DOWNS, Biology and Medicine Editor

For thousands of years, man has been growing plants and using them for food, clothing, housing, medicine and adornment.

But in many ways, he has been like a non-

Electronic instrumentation used in gathering data mechanic driving a car; he has known how to use it — to make it start, stop, go fast, go slow — but he has had only a general idea about what makes it operate.

Only in recent years have scientists begun to understand the fundamentals of the way a seed grows and develops, becoming root, stem, leaf and flower, drawing energy from the sun and sustenance from the soil and the air.

In order to intensify this kind of research and consequently to gain a better understanding of how food crops are affected by radiation and how they can be improved, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and Michigan State University have joined forces and established the MSU-AEC Plant Research Laboratory.

As a result of research by the new laboratory and similar studies in the departments of botany and plant pathology, horticulture, crop science and biochemistry, MSU is gaining new prominence as a center for plant research.

After operating for its first year in the Biochemistry building, the plant research laboratory moved this summer into its own $2.6 million research building in the science complex.

The new building is designed, furnished and staffed for the specific purpose of conducting research on the thousands of intricate genetic, biochemical, biophysical and physiological processes that take place in the transition of seed to mature plant.

Special facilities and equipment which will help researchers in their tasks include an underground chamber for irradiating plants with rays from a highly radioactive cobalt 60 source, a number of plant growth chambers for regulating the light, temperature and humidity of the environment in which plants are growing, and a wide range of modern electronic equipment, including an electron microscope and instruments for determining quantities of radioactive isotopes taken up by growing plants.

Directed by Dr. Anton Lang, the plant research laboratory is designed to train graduate students and postdoctoral researchers as well as to conduct research.

Graduate student works with plants in Atomic Energy Laboratory

The staff presently includes nine full-time plant biologists, biochemists and geneticists who are appointed to academic departments as well as to the research laboratory. Also on the staff are 12 postdoctoral researchers. When fully developed, the laboratory will have a staff of about 100, including 35 to 40 professional persons and about 25 graduate students.

Some of the researchers in the new laboratory are studying the physiology of plants, with particular emphasis on the process of flowering and the ways in which environmental factors affect growth and development. Others are studying the role of plant hormones and enzymes in plant development. Cell wall proteins, control of algal spore formation and physiological genetics are also major concerns.

In addition to the application of such research to the improvement of crop plants and to the understanding of radiation damage on plants, and thus on the nation's food supply, many aspects of the research are applicable to growth and development of animals and humans. For example, a geneticist on the staff is studying a chemical which is common to the blood of pregnant women, to growing kernels of corn to cancer cells, suggesting that it is probably involved in the rapid division of cells in plants, animals and humans alike.

W. H. Davis (left), Alcoa's General Manager—Industrial Relations, says: "We've found that Army ROTC graduates with active duty experience as officers possess better than average initiative, foresight, and responsibility. These are qualities we rate very highly, and we gladly pay a premium to get them."

Why did Alcoa hire Rod Wilson?

Because Alcoa needs men to fill key positions—men capable of moving to the top; men who seek and measure up to responsibility. Rod Wilson is that kind of man. An Army ROTC Distinguished Military Graduate at Colorado State University, Rod won an officer's commission in the Regular Army along with his degree. Forty-four months of active duty, including 16 months overseas as an artillery commander, earned Rod Wilson 24-carat credentials as a leader, a man schooled in the demanding disciplines of command, the kind of man Alcoa looks for.

If you're this kind of man, prove it to yourself, and to the companies like Alcoa who are looking for you. How? Get in Army ROTC. Stay with Army ROTC, all the way to success.

When it's football time...
it's time to improve your lawn

Take advantage of the best time of the whole year to rejuvenate a lawn. The experts always fertilize in the fall, when natural growing conditions are best for the development of good, tight turf. You can literally help grass multiply itself with an October or November feeding. The benefits will be apparent this fall — and in next year's lawn. Truly a once-a-year opportunity!

Fifty Years Ago — The First Title

Time Adds to Golden Glow of "Chic" Harley's All-American Performance in 1916

By IRVEN SCHEIBECK
(Columbus Dispatch Writer)

Irvan Scheibeck

Anyone who tries to capture the "Chic" Harley legend in cold type and printer's ink is beaten before he starts.

Any writer, attempting to tell the Harley story is quick to sense the frustration which must have assailed Ohio State's opponents, circa 1916-1919, who tried to tackle "Chic" in the open field—or hold him if they did get him in their grasp.

Time has truly added to the golden glow of the Harley period at Ohio State University, which pauses today to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the "Only One's" first season—and by no means incidentally—Ohio State's first Western Conference football championship.

To one who was a mere kid in 1916 (the author was only 11), it's a shock to realize that a half century has passed since Ohio State's Scarlet banner first flew proudly from the Conference championship flagpole.

Little did we realize then, as we twice spent our "life's savings" (50 cents each time) to see the great "Chic" play, that it would be our privilege to write about it five decades later.

It is possible to be a Harley admirer without living in the past or disparaging modern football in comparison to the so-called "good old days."

Harley himself will tell you—and so will those of his teammates who are still running ahead of Father Time—that today's football is better.

They also will tell you that to characterize the heroes of yesterday as supermen is nonsense.

In a larger sense, Chic Harley and his teammates of 1916, 1917 and 1919 were pioneers. They were the drivers of football's "Covered Wagon" days who paved the way for the pilots of today's jets.

With the past and present placed in their proper perspective, it is still appropriate to observe that it was Harley and his dedicated, hard-hitting and combat-loving teammates who shot Ohio State University's athletic fortunes into the rarified atmosphere of the "big time" 50 years ago.

The accomplishments of Harley and his teammates had a profound impact on the subsequent growth of the university—and not merely in athletics.

Dr. Howard L. Bevis, former OSU president, probably said it best on Nov. 8, 1963 before more than 80,000 people in Ohio Stadium when "Chic" was inducted into Football's Hall of Fame.

Addressing the huge throng between halves of the Michigan State game in the "House that Harley Built", Dr. Bevis said, in part:

"It takes a lot of people a long time to build a university . . . this building is done in many ways, and spreads out in many directions, including athletics . . . It is no exaggeration to say that in his way, "Chic" Harley was one of the builders of the university, and as such he will always be remembered."

What a team those 1916 Buckeyes were!

Compared to the giants of today, and even to the big, bruising Illinois, Chicago, Wisconsin and Minnesota teams of the 'Teen Decade, Ohio State looked like a group of refugees from Singer's Midgets.

The only sizeable player on the team was the late Bob Karch, a 230-pound sophomore guard, who later enjoyed a long and successful career as coach at East High School, "Chic's" interscholastic Alma Mater.

Harley himself weighed only 150 to 155 pounds; Howard Yerges, one of Ohio State's greatest quarterbacks, who developed the "quarterback sneak" to a science, wasn't much bigger; Frank (Swede) Sorenson, captain and fullback, weighed only 164 pounds and other backs, Fred Norton, "Frosty" Hurm, Rhoades and Hamilton, were equally diminutive.

Ohio linemen included Charlie Seddon, a "watch charm" guard, who, at 145, was probably the smallest man ever to play this position on a college team.

Brothers Harold and Howard Courtney, fast steel trap open field tacklers, weighed 163 and 168 respectively. Kelly Van Dyne, 170 and Fritz Holtcamp, 165, shared the center job and Ohio's great end pair of Charles (Shifty) Bolen and Dwight Peabody, weighed 165 and 168 respectively.

But if the 1916 Buckeyes lacked size, they had speed, and, more important, they had a coach, Jack Wilce, (he wasn't Dr. Wilce in those days) who was one of the pioneers in the development of the forward pass.

Wilce, who never did receive full credit for the fact that he was years ahead of his time in the development of the air game, had the vision to realize its potentiality as an "equalizer" for undersized teams.

Fortunately, for Wilce and Ohio State, he had two of the greatest passers the game has known, before or since. Yes, one of them was Harley, the other was Yerges. The way those two could throw the oversized pumpkin which passed for a football in those "dark ages" of the sport was almost unbelievable.

One other big asset Ohio State had in 1916 was the element of surprise. Few of the "experts" of those days gave the Buckeyes more than a passing glance. They installed Illinois and Minnesota, the previous year's co-champions as title favorites and rated Wisconsin and Chicago as top contenders.

Yet, when Ohio State closed its season with Northwestern, another Conference "have not", the championship was at stake. Had any Sports writer predicted such a situation before the start of the season, he would have been considered a mental case.

Without in any way overlooking the potent contributions made by other members of the dedicated 1916 Buckeyes, it was Harley who supplied the vital spark.

Many members of the younger generation, and even some oldsters, often have asked the question: "Was Harley really as good as they said he was?"

The answer is a resounding "Yes, Yes, Yes—a thousand times Yes!"

"Chic" may not have been football's greatest ball carrier but with all due respect to "Red" Grange, Jim Thorpe, Tommy Harmon and George Gipp, you can still count his equals on the fingers of one hand.

Deceptively fast, he could usually outrun opposing ends to break away from scrimmage. To keep the defense honest, he occasionally sliced off tackle and "bulled" his way through the middle of the line.

No single tackler ever dropped him in the open field and on countless occasions, he broke away from being fairly tackled. Although not a big man, Harley had powerful legs, possessed a bewildering change of pace and used the straight arm like Jack Dempsey throwing a left jab.

Harley was one of football's first authentic "triple threat" men. He was an amazing passer, and, as a kicker, he was good as any in history, both as a punter and place kicker. Also, he was an outstanding exponent of the now forgotten art of drop-kicking.

After being kept under wraps in Ohio State's opening 12-0 victory over Ohio Wesleyan and its incredible 128-0 stampede over Oberlin, Harley achieved lasting fame in his first Conference game, with Illinois at Champaign, played under miserable weather conditions on a soggy field.

It was sheer drama when Harley, after scoring a touchdown on a 16-yard run with only about a minute left to play, calmly changed shoes, discarding his mud-caked footgear for a dry one, and kicked the all-important extra point.

Illinois, thanks to two field goals by Bart Macomber, had led 6 to 0 at the half and it looked bad for the Buckeyes. Due to the sticky field, "Chic" could get away for his wide sweeps. Finally, with time running short, Harley started smashing up the middle, carrying the ball on almost every play to bring it to the Illini 16.

At this point "Chic" switched tactics and once again ran a sweep, heading for the sideline where the footing was more solid. This time he made it.

From then on, the Buckeyes were unstoppable.

A homecoming crowd of about 12,000 (that's right) looked on with trepidation as Ohio State took on the powerful Wisconsin Badgers on old Ohio Field, located along High St. just north of 17th Ave.

The Buckeyes met the challenge and again came away with a one-point victory, 14 to 13. Harley scored both Ohio State touchdowns, the first on a 27-yard run after his pass to Yerges had put the ball in scoring position.

Ohio State broke a 7-7 halftime deadlock in the second half when "Chic" took a Badger punt on his own 20, slipped out of the grasp of at least eight tacklers and ran 80 yards for a touchdown for one of his greatest efforts.

Harley kicked both extra points and this provided the winning margin. The Badgers rallied gamely in the last minute and scored again but were deprived of a chance to tie the score when the kick-out for the extra point try was dropped.

Ohio State then smashed Indiana, 46 to 7 with Harley being used sparingly because of the Buckeyes' obvious superiority. A week later they visited Cleveland to subdue stubborn Case, still a highly respected Ohio opponent, by a 28-0 margin. Harley scored one touchdown on a 11-yard run.

The finale with Northwestern produced another great Harley performance when the Bucks flattened the Purple 23 to 3 and stopped the great Paddy Driscoll, a star in his own right.

Ohio State scored in the first three minutes when Harley kicked a 34-yard field goal but Northwestern fought back and battled the Bucks to a standstill until early in the fourth period. At this point Driscoll had his one big moment when he tied the score with a 38-yard dropkick.

But this merely ignited the fire under the Buckeye boilers.

After the next kickoff, Harley swung wide from scrimmage on the 37-yard line, outran the Northwestern end, reversed his field after being trapped momentarily near the sideline and ran 63 yards for a touchdown.

Northwestern launched a desperate passing attack to reach the Ohio State 40-yard line but at this point Harley showed his defensive skill. He intercepted the next Wildcat pass on the 20 to snuff out Northwestern's final scoring threat.

The Bucks then proceeded to wrap it up. They rolled down to Northwestern's 15-yard line on a brilliant, sustained drive and from here, Harley scored again. In the fading moments, Chic put the "frosting on the cake" when he threw a beautiful pass to Clarence McDonald which planted the ball on the Northwestern 2-yard line. Then he led a wave of blockers for Captain "Swede" Sorenson, who scored the final touchdown.

No attempt will be made to compare Ohio State's first champions with modern day teams because football today is a different game. But no one can deny the 1916 champs were true representatives of their era.

The 1916 Buckeyes were not only Ohio State's first conference champions, they were the first of only three undefeated and untied teams in Ohio State history.

It was 28 years before Carroll Widdoes' 1944 champions became the second, with a 9-0-0 record. Ten years later, Woody Hayes' 1954 national champions ran up a 10-0-0 record to become the third.

"Chic's" second team, the 1917 championship unit, also went through the regular season unbeaten and untied. Ohio State defeated Camp Sherman in a post season game, but was held to a scoreless tie by Auburn. "Chic" was injured in the Auburn game and taken out early.

Returning from war service in 1919, Harley led Ohio State to the threshold of another unbeaten season despite an injured knee which would have stopped a less resolute player.

"Chic" sent Ohio State into a 7-6 lead in the third quarter of the championship game with Illinois with a touchdown from the 2-yard line following a 28-yard pass to McDonald. It looked like 1916 all over again when Chic kicked the extra point but this time it was not to be.

Illinois staged a tremendous last period drive and, in the last 8 seconds of play Bob Fletcher booted a field goal to give Illinois a 9-7 victory.

But the Illini recognized Harley's greatness even in his only collegiate defeat. It was an impressive tribute when members of the Illinois team carried "Chic" off the field.

Truly, he was a great one!

The top photo often was referred to by the late Coach Dr. John W. Wilce as "the perfect play". With "Chic" Harley, (left, carrying the ball), Northwestern players were swept aside in a 23-3 Ohio State victory which enabled the Buckeyes to win their first Big Ten title in 1916. The same play is shown immediately above with old Ohio Field bleachers in the background. Right;—Harley leaning away from a tackler in practice. Below, championship squad of 1916. THE PERFECT PLAY

When The Lantern "Jumped The Gun"

First "Extra" in 1919 "Backfires" as Illinois Rallies to Win, 9-7

By PHILIP W. PORTER, '22
(Executive Editor, Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Philip W. Porter

When Chic Harley began his historic career at Ohio State in 1916, I was still in high school. Fortunately, I caught up with him in his senior year, in the fall of 1919, the year Ohio State beat Michigan for the first time in history, 13-3.

The first touchdown came on a 50-yard punt return by Chic. I'll always remember that game, because I covered it as special correspondent for The Plain Dealer. Went up to Ann Arbor at my own expense, and was amazed to find that my story led the PD sports page Sunday. The Cleveland papers had not previously paid much attention to Ohio State football. (Incidentally, they paid me $5 for it; big dough in those days.)

The rest of the season our team roared down the track toward a championship. They had some close ones, but came to the last game, with Illinois, undefeated. I was not only writing about the games for the Lantern. I had taken that original $5 check and bet it and pyramided it, as a loyal fan would, until it was a fat $20.

We came up to that Illinois game so optimistic it was unbelievable. We had won every game. It was to be Harley's last game, topping off a championship for a great all-American. A big football banquet (celebration, naturally) had been planned. So we Lantern journalists decided to do something really special. We'd put out a football extra right after the game, something never attempted before.

Unfortunately, it didn't come out the way we planned. Nor did the game. We lost 9-7, on a field goal in the last 8 seconds of play, by Bob Fletcher, who later became coach at Case Tech.

Unfortunately, we had closed the "extra" a few minutes too soon, and it showed Ohio State winning, 7-6. It was the blackest day of my life (up to that time), but it taught me a lesson I never forgot in 47 years of newspaper work. Never jump the gun!

Years later, on November 20, 1962, I described the fiasco thus in a column in The Plain Dealer:

"My role as too-eager beaver was shared by Harry W. August, now vice president of Case Tech. He and I were joint sports editors of the Lantern that fall. It really wasn't his fault, because I gave the word from old Ohio Field to let 'er roll. But he had to stop the press, make over, and try to rectify the damage. It was impossible; the result was a complete fiasco.

"We had been all charged up with ambition. Putting out any edition at all, much less an extra in time to catch a departing football crowd, was a miracle on that old flat bed press, with one pressman and two printers, but we got permission from "Chief" Myers, the head prof, and Tom Meek, the editor (now a New York broker), to call in the whole staff, set up a special phone, and do a play-by-play.

"It looked like a cinch, with Ohio winning the title, and Harley, our first all-American, going out in glory. We'd sell the extras to the crowd of some 20,000 before the downtown Columbus papers could get up there; the Lantern office was only a quarter of a mile from the field.

"Everything went dandy the first half, when August was in the press box, and even in the third quarter, when I switched with him and he took over in the office. It was even going unbelievably well till the last five minutes. Then disaster!

"With five minutes to go, the ball was on Illinois' own 20-yard line. Though Ohio led by only 7-6, the game had been totally one-sided. Illinois' touchdown had been tainted by a doubtful decision. Though able to score only once, Ohio had gained monotonously. Illinois just couldn't move the ball and seldom had it.

"It looked like a cinch to end 7-6. I couldn't see how Illinois could possibly move the ball 80 yards in five minutes. I phoned Harry to let 'er roll.

"But in the next four plays, Illinois completed four long forward passes (they just didn't pass in their own territory in those days), and put the ball on Ohio's 20-yard line, and with the clock racing madly, Fletcher place-kicked that goal.

"Harley leaned against a goal post and cried. Porter would have shot himself, if he'd had a gun.

"Stop the presses!" I cried (Yes, I did, just like in the movies.) But it was too late. We already had 2,000 copies run off. August made over and kept the erroneous papers from going out all right but by the time they started to run with the right score, the crowd had gone.

"And so had $20 that I had bet confidently on the game, a sum equivalent to $2,000 today, for I was working my way through college."

"Thirty-five years later a copy of that wrong extra auctioned for $50 at an alumni reunion. In all the years that followed, when I was putting the Plain Dealer 'to bed', I never jumped the gun again.

"But it shook Tom Meek so much that he became a broker."

"OFFICIAL WATCH FOR THIS GAME — LONGINES — THE WORLD'S MOST HONORED WATCH"

THREE- YEAR HERO

Crowds were small compared to present day standards in Ohio stadium but there was plenty of action on old Ohio Field in the 1916-19 era. The field was located on the west side of High-st, south of W. Woodruff Ave., and bounded on the west by the present Arps Hall-University School area. "Chic" Harley became an all-American for the third straight year. Action photos at left involve a 20-0 victory over Purdue and a 9-7 loss to Illinois, Harley's only defeat as a college player.

Harley "Took Over", Easing Duties of Mates

Athletic Council Member Recalls How "Chic" Played When it Counted

By FRITZ L. SCHWEITZER
(Alumni Member, Athletic Council)

Fritz L. Schweitzer

To write about "Chic" Harley takes me back one half century, plus two years, September of 1914, when I first heard of him, the Columbus East High halfback.

I had signed up for freshman football, had pledged Phi Gam and had met Bill Havens, a varsity halfback, also a Phi Gam. It was from Bill that I heard about "Chic". Bill told me to get in my football in 1915 because after that "Chic" would take over and believe me, "Chic" did just that.

His freshman year was '15 and did he ever make life miserable for the varsity! In '16, and thereafter as you know, he made life miserable for all of our opponents and Ohio State took two consecutive Western Conference championships.

That was one half century ago and that is a long time. I might add, that of my 1915 squad, I believe perhaps five of us are still around. The War and time took care of that.

I did, however, have three years of close friendship with "Chic", who became a fraternity brother. I had four years to study "Chic" on and off the field. "Chic" was one half inch taller than I and we both weighed 165 pounds. How could he be so much better than I or any of us for that matter? We had to know as much about the plays, the system, the moves, as he did, so the answer had to be his natural instinctive ability to make his moves faster, smoother, more evasive and one might think, harder than we did. "Chic" however, didn't play a hard game of football until the chips were down and we needed yards; then he could turn on the power.

He had the most effective stiff arm I've ever seen used. However, it wasn't just that. "Chic" used a stiff arm not only to keep a tackler off but to propel himself forward. That and a pair of swivel hips was one answer to his great ability, but add to that his change of pace, which occurred just as the tackler came in, made for a lot of yards gained. His tacklers simply weren't able to compensate for that change of pace. Once he had started the change, they were lost.

Some times "Chic" played what seemed to be lazy football. He wasn't lazy at all, he merely ran easily until the time came to open up. I've seen him stopped cold many times by several tacklers. Many times he didn't even fall down. He just stood there grinning at his tacklers. He would give them a pat on the shoulder and a few words, then ask for the same play over again, but watch out that time for that's when the power and speed showed. Even then if they caught the idea, he could and often did shift out and pass, for he was expert at that, too.

"Chic" loved the game of football, as we all did in those days. It was great fun but we were spoiled for we didn't know how to lose games simply because we kept on winning, that is, until the final eight seconds of the last game in '19, with Illinois, our last college game. That was a tough loss for it cost us a third championship. That day taught us how to lose.

I mention that we didn't know how to lose. "Chic" made that possible. He made the difference and provided the spark whenever he was in the game. In '17 we gave up a total of six points. Just five years ago, Coach Jack Wilce reviewed those years for us and actually startled us in relating just how good the offensive team was on defense, for at that time, they were one and the same.

Throughout this half century, whenever "Chic's" name comes up and that is often, the subject turns to football only, for that was his game, even though he excelled in any sport. That, however, isn't the point; no one ever brings up the subject of "Chic" off the field. What kind of guy was he to pal around? That's a subject I should know something about for he and Bill Havens and I did a lot of that. The very best answer I can give is that during this past half century I have never, not even once, heard any one make any critical remark about "Chic" Harley. Isn't it a fact that the very lack of any such criticism speaks for itself? Not on eof us was ever envious of his skill and ability. How could we be when he made the rest of the team look so good. We all liked and admired the guy for he was a team player on or off the field. In my book, "Chic" was and is great.

The "Chic" Harley Era — 1916-1919

Saga of 22 games without defeat and two Big Ten Championships

"Chic" Harley Today

When Chic Harley was playing football as a senior at Columbus East High School in 1941, his team lost its final game of the season to Columbus North, 13-0.

That was the last defeat for a Harley-playing team until, ironically, his final game in an Ohio State uniform on Nov. 22, 1919, when Illinois defeated the Buckeyes 9 to 7. Eight seconds were left to play and Ohio was leading 7 to 6 but a field goal gave the decision to the visitors.

In between the last high school loss and this Scarlet and Gray defeat, Harley and his mates compiled a 22-game streak without defeat (there was one tie). This brilliant period, with the late Dr. John W. Wilce as head coach, resulted in two Big Ten championships and a second place finish. The 9-7 defeat allowed the Illini to win the title in 1919 with a 6-1 record. An Ohio State victory would have meant another championship.

A seven-game schedule was played in 1916—50 years ago—and it opened with a 12-0 victory over Ohio Wesleyan. The count for all the points, as Ohio State won, 26-3.

Wisconsin was defeated 16 to 3 and again Harley figured in all of the scoring. He passed for two touchdowns, kicked a field goal and one extra point.

It was now down to another championship game, this time with Illinois. Harley was held without a touchdown but passed for the only touchdown, kicked two field goals of 14 and 29 yards and one extra point, as Ohio romped to another championship, 13 to 0.

Two post-season games were played for the benefit of service men of World War I. Auburn University held the Buckeyes to a scoreless tie but Camp Sherman was defeated 28 to 0.

Ohio State's goal line was uncrossed, field goals by Indiana and Wisconsin being the only points allowed. Meanwhile, Harley and Company tallied 292.

With Harley and many of his team mates in service, only six games were played in 1918 and the Buckeyes broke even, blanking Ohio Wesleyan, Denison and Case and losing to Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin.

The war over, Harley returned to spearhead successive shutouts over Ohio Wesleyan, Cincinnati and Kentucky. In these three triumphs, Harley, used only sparingly, scored 45 points on six touchdowns, two field goals and three extra points.

Harley never had opposed a Michigan team and he was ready for the Wolverines. They saw him score on a 42 yard run, intercept four passes, punt for a 42 yard average and kick an extra point in Ohio State's 13-3 victory.

Purdue was defeated the following week 20 to 0 when Harley ran 30 yards for a touchdown, passed for another, and kicked two extra points.

Wisconsin proved to be tough again and Harley's 22 yard field goal was the only score of a 3-0 game.

Then came the disappointing finish. Illinois scored the only touchdown of the season against the Buckeyes and after the point was missed, Harley scored from two yards out and kicked the extra point. With eight seconds remaining, Bob Fletcher kicked a field goal to give the Illini a stunning victory.

Gloom fell over Ohio Field, but not enough to dim the career of Chic Harley, whose running, passing, punting, drop-kicking and 198 points have been remembered these 50 years.

Have astronauts made pilots old hat?

Sure, the boys who go off the "pads" get the big, bold headlines. But if you want to fly, the big opportunities are still with the aircraft that take off and land on several thousand feet of runway.

Who needs pilots? TAC does. And MAC. And SAC. And ADC.

There's a real future in Air Force flying. In years to come aircraft may fly higher, faster, and further than we dare dream of. But they'll be flying, with men who've had Air Force flight training at the controls. Of course the Air Force also has plenty of jobs for those who won't be flying. As one of the world's largest and most advanced research and development organizations, we have a continuing need for scientists and engineers.

Young college graduates in these fields will find that they'll have the opportunity to do work that is both interesting and important. The fact is, nowhere will you have greater latitude or responsibility right from the start than on the Aerospace Team—the U.S. Air Force!

Interested? The place to find out more is at the office of the Professor of Aerospace Studies, if there is an Air Force ROTC unit on your campus. Ask about the new 2-year AFROTC program available at many colleges and universities. If you prefer, mail the coupon below.

CARMEN OHIO

Oh! come let's sing Ohio's praise

And songs to Alma Mater raise;

While our hearts rebounding thrill

With joy which death alone can still

Summer's heat or winter's cold,

The seasons pass, the years will roll:

Time and change will surely show

How firm thy friendship — OHIO

The Ohio State University Marching Band presents

SOUNDS OF MUSIC UNIQUELY OURS

Situation and Music

Aaron Copeland wrote Fanfare for the Common Man, American in style and sound. Richard Rodgers has brought us Sound of Music. Both compositions are uniquely ours.

What can be more closely related to American music than a Sousa march and marching feet?

From Broadway, with pool table and all, Luck Be a Lady Tonight.

Religious music has long been a tradition in America. An old Shaker melody, 'Tis The Gift To Be Simple, is the perfect musical background for a growing flower.

Closely associated with American music, a sound uniquely ours . . . the blues. An original composition for a band drill, ours alone, Richard Heine's Bell of the Blues.

Unique in the annals of Ohio State Football, Across the Field and "Chic" Harley.

exclusively Gant

Glen Striped Oxford: a more subtle expression in stripings achieved by framing stripe-edges with a second color and spreading them wider apart. Gant's inimitable way of giving élan, in a gentlemanly manner, to a button-down. In gold stripes with blue framing; green or blue stripes with pumpkin framing; all on wheat ground. In tapered Hugger body. About $7.50 at discerning stores. For one nearest you, write Gant Shirtmakers, New Haven, Connecticut.
